

LEAGUE OF SUPER EVIL Threatens to Take Over Cannes

- 26 episodes picked up by YTV, CBBC, Animania, Canal +, Canal J, Jetix Latin America
- Nerd Corps announces Online Strategy of Doom
- Mu Ha Ha Ha Ha Ha ensues

(Vancouver, Canada – September 24, 2008) --- Nerd Corps' plan for ultimate global takeover (loosely disguised as a television show) continues to gain momentum, as The League of Super Evil prepares for launch at the MIPCOM Jr. screenings, and readies its online attack plan.

Canadian kidnet YTV is the commissioning broadcaster for this diabolical series and collaborating on The League's plan for complete world domination is the BBC's children's channel in the UK, CBBC, Jetix in Latin America and Canal + Family, Canal J and Gulli in France. And just when you thought American viewers would be safe, VOOM HD network's Animania HD will be airing the series in menacing widescreen high definition.

Targeting 6- to 11-year-olds the 3-D comedy series will kick off in 2009 with 26 half-hour episodes comprised of two 11-minute segments. Additionally, Nerd Corps will be creating evil 30-second shorts tied to each episode for use as bonus on-air content of evil.

Meanwhile, back at the Nerd Corps top secret lair, work has begun on phase two of the plan, a massively multiplayer online collectible trading card game of doom. Nerd Corps is internally developing the game and a comprehensive fan site that will provide six to 11 year old fans with a huge amount of interactivity through chatting, trading and competing.

Armed with a whole new approach to badness, The League of Super Evil (a.k.a. L.O.S.E.) follows four Super Villains who have set their sights on nothing less than total neighbourhood domination! Between "borrowing" a used 1987 Shiruken anime robot to win a slam dunk competition, creating a set of clones so someone's around to scoop their demon's pan-dimensional poop, or scheming to be first-in-line for the new iDestruct from BadApple, L.O.S.E. struggles ever-onward to its goal of total mindless fun! Isn't it time the Villains got their due?
